Making bequests

How you can help us maintain and enrich Jewish life in Wellington

Why make a bequest?

A bequest is a charitable donation made in a will.

Bequests have advantages for the donor and their loved ones:

- The donor is able to control how their wealth is used.

By making a will and spelling out how their money is used, the donor has peace of mind knowing their wishes will be honoured.

- The donor can enjoy the recognition of making a bequest while still living.

If the donor advises the charity of their intent to leave a bequest to the organisation, the charity can honour the donor and express its gratitude while the donor is still around to enjoy it!

How much should I give?

You can give whatever you can after providing for your family.

Bequests usually specify a fixed amount or a percentage of a donor's estate.

We are grateful for every bequest, whatever its size.

Every bequest of any size will help maintain the Wellington Jewish Community Centre and achieve our mission of enriching Jewish life in Wellington.

How should I word my bequest?

A bequest can be added by whoever is drafting your will and will normally be wording like:

"I hereby give and bequeath to the Wellington Jewish Community Centre, Webb Street, Wellington, New Zealand, the sum of $_____ or _____ per cent of the balance of my estate for unrestricted purposes. I hereby declare that the signature of the designated Director of the Wellington Jewish Community Centre Board of Directors shall be sufficient discharge to my executor(s)."
